ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for processing transactions includes initiating a transaction to access an account. An authorization request is sent to an authorization entity associated with the account. Itemization detail data associated with the transaction is sent to the authorization

5 entity. At least the itemization detail data is routed to an owner of the account. A system for processing transactions includes a vendor entity and an authorization entity. The vendor entity is adapted to initiate a transaction to access an account, generate an authorization request, and generate itemization detail data associated with the transaction. The authorization entity is associated with the account and adapted to the receive authorization

10 request, receive the itemization detail data from the vendor entity, and route at least the itemization detail data to an owner of the account.